FEW POLLOCK OR HERRING TO THE EASTWARD

In response to a telegraphic inquiry by the Times as to the prospects of the pollock and herring fishery on the Maine coast, the Portland Argus wires as follows: "Few pollock or herring landed here or Boothbay this week. Some steamers failed to find any from Boone Island to Boothway. Skippers expect them to show up with clearing weather."

GOING TO BAY ON NETTING TRIP

Capt. Albert Conway is fitting sch. Marsala for a mackerel netting trip to the Cape Shore and North Bay and will be gone all summer. Although this kind of fishing is followed extensively in the Provinces, it is unusual for a local vessel to make such a netting trip. Capt. Conway expects to get away next week, in time for the Cape Shore season.

BOATS 'WOLLOP' THE POLLOCK

Many of the Little Fleet Did Well Yesterday—One Made Two Trips.

More pollock was landed here yesterday, all the small steamers doing well. Fish are reported a few miles off shore, while some have been taken off Egg Rock in various sized schools. Yesterday the steamer Advance made two hauls, taking 12,000 weight the first time and 20,000 pounds the latter. The Gertrude seined 15,000 pounds, while the rest of the fleet took schools in smaller amounts.

Quite a fleet of crafts were sent down from Boston to split on account of the poor market there yesterday.

Another salt drifting fare is here this morning, sch. Jubilee hailing for 50,000 pounds salt cod.

Herring seem to have disappeared hereabouts for a time at least, although the incoming fleet yesterday report several schools seen on Jeffers.

Gill netters landed about 10,000 pounds fresh fish yesterday.

NEWFOUNDLAND BLOCKED BY ICE

A late run of Arctic ice has blockaded the east coast of Newfoundland. The great floes have so choked the harbors that the movement of coastwise vessels has been stopped and the hundred fishing schooners ready for their annual operations on the Grand Banks and off the Labrador coast have been delayed in departure.

Coming With Codfish.

The sch. Montana, formerly owned by James H. Baggs, has been sold to Edward Barry, who will use her in the coastwise trade. She takes a cargo of codfish from Woods Island and Codroy to Gloucester for the Gorton-Pew Fisheries Co.—Western Star.

Harbored at Georges

Two American fishing vessels, the Independence II. and Bohemia, were at St. George's on Sunday, awaiting a chance to get to Magdalen Islands. The Independence hailed for 125,000 pounds of cod.—Western Star, May 5.

TRIM NEW CRAFT HAS TWO COOKS

Says the Portland Argus:

The beautiful new fishing schooner Henrietta from Gloucester, so that the paint on her decks is not scratched nor has ever seen a came into port Thursday on her maiden voyage. The schooner came for bait and ice and will put to sea convenient looking for fish on the fishing grounds. The Henrietta is of the very latest Essex models for the Gloucester fish people will when time allows be equipped a powerful auxiliary engine. There were some delays in fitting her and as time was pressing it was decided to send her to sea for her trip without the engine. One of men on board said they hoped make enough on their first trip for the engine out of their earnings, instead of putting the money in their bank rolls and then getting back later. The Henrietta is built a combination of the Burgess and line Essex model. That is to say, has a cutter bow, but also has a stack, instead of being a blunt vessel like the Helen B. Thomas some of the newer schooners. The vessel has another feature that is to be entirely out of the rule for fishermen. She carries two cooks, a and a second cook. Men along water front, some of whom have going to sea in fishermen for 40 years or more, say they never heard of a fisherman, no matter how large, had two cooks attached to the vessel at one and the same time. The Henrietta probably got away some time yesterday and now the had better watch out.

The little schooner Gracie was Central wharf Thursday with a lot of market cod which were out by the Central wharf people.

The eastern sardine people are in a situation that bothers much. For some unknown reason there was a sudden drop in the of domestic packed sardines on a of $2.50 for keyless 1-4 oils. Below the cost of the fish to packers and they don't know what to do next. Fish are selling Eastport and Lubec for from $15 a hoghead and while efforts been made to lower the figures what it has not succeeded because a scarcity of fish.
